Randy! where are you came in shrill, high-pitched tones from the kitchen. The girl on the wooden seat just outside the door neither moved nor heeded, so engrossed in her book was she. Ran-dee! This time there was a rising inflection on the last syllable. Slowly the girls forefinger followed along the line which she was reading. A quick step across the kitchen, and a tall, angular woman appeared in the doorway, wiping her hands on her blue-checked apron. Why, Randy Weston! Here Ive been callin and callin to you, and youre right here at the door and never heard at all, Ill warrant you. Whats that youre readin Oh, mother, Im sorry I didnt hear you, said Randy, her face still aglow with the thought of the fascinating tale; but the story was so wonderful that I never knew you called me. Must have been wonderful, said Mrs. Weston, smiling. What sort of a book is it, and where did you get it Why, its the one I told you I found in the field back of the barn, said Randy. Its all about kings and queens, and princes and fairies, and goblins, and oh, its just the most wonderful book you ever saw! I hope its a good book, said Mrs. Weston, doubtfully; it sounds kind of outlandish, and I know one thing, I never have to call twice when I give you Pilgrims Progress or Foxs Book of Martyrs to read. But, mother, just see the pictures! Heres the one that shows when the prince rode on the horse which was shod with golden shoes, and could run faster than the wind! That was too much...
